Not because they're bad at the job.

Because they're good at it. Everyone goes to them, so the answers live in their head.

01

What you promised your top client

The March email. The rate exception. The “just this once.”

02

Which agent at origin actually answers

On weekends. Before a cut-off. When it matters.

03

Why that entry got flagged last time

And what fixed it.

04

The client's unwritten rules

Who to cc. When not to call. What “urgent” means to them.

05

Free time and special terms

Negotiated once. Remembered by one person.

Try this week

Ask 3 people the same question about your top client.

Count the answers. One answer: good. Three: you just measured your risk.

Make the company remember, not just the people.

Comment BRAIN and I'll send you the checklist.
